Responding to emergency situations

For those who do not speak Japanese, an interpreter is available via three-way call.

Interpreter

A radio dispatcher alerts police stations, cars and officers while listening to your report. Nearest police officers rush to the scene.

When you call 110, you'll be asked

- Are you reporting a crime or accident?
- What happened? • When was it?
- Where was it? • What type of crime/accident is it?
- Who's done it? • What's your name?

Stay calm and speak slowly.
